

Questions for Vince — Online Ordering

From: Brian (KD70) · Re: postalandcopyplus.com

A few quick questions so we build the right thing. There are no wrong answers — your answers to #1 and #2 decide the overall approach; everything else we can tune.

1. WHAT DO YOU WANT CUSTOMERS TO BE ABLE TO DO ONLINE? (CHECK ANY THAT APPLY)

- ☐ Submit a print job — upload their file + fill out the job ticket — for in-store pickup
- ☐ Order online and have it shipped to them (print jobs mailed out, or products)
- ☐ Buy gifts online — a real online store for the gift shop
- ☐ Not sure yet / let's talk it through

2. WHAT ARE YOU PICTURING SHIPSTATION FOR?

- ☐ Automatically ship online orders — print labels + send tracking (this is what it's best at)
- ☐ Fulfillment for an online store
- ☐ Just exploring — heard it's good / API-friendly

Note: ShipStation is for shipping online orders out the door. It overlaps with what PostalMate already does at the counter, so it earns its cost mainly if orders are being shipped to customers. It doesn't replace PostalMate.

3. IF ONLINE PAYMENT IS INVOLVED, HOW SHOULD MONEY BE HANDLED?

- ☐ Keep payments in PostalMate — customer pays at pickup, or you charge the card there (simplest; keeps all your books and QuickBooks in one place)
- ☐ Let customers pay online — a separate card processor (convenient, but separate from PostalMate, so those charges are reconciled separately)

4. A FEW DETAILS, WHENEVER YOU'RE READY

- Where should online orders be emailed to? (e.g., info@postalandcopyplus.com — we'd set this up)
- Which card processor do you use in-store today? (PostalMate Pay / Cayan / SignaPay / other)
- Should the online form include proof-approval and due-date fields? Yes / No

Answer #1 and #2 first — that tells us whether this is a simple online order form, a ship-it-to-them setup, or a full online store, and we build from there.
